

Mark Twain Visits The Heritage of Green Hills

Portrayed by local actor Roger Mallon, Twain spoke to the community' residents about his life and views on the human condition.

SHILLINGTON, Pa. – (March 12, 2015) – The Heritage of Green Hills, a healthy living community in Shillington, recently hosted a presentation by Mark Twain, as portrayed by Reading-based actor, television and radio performer and producer, Roger Mallon. Twain, one of America's most beloved authors and humorists, spoke about his life, his views of people and the human condition.

According to Cheryl Anderson, community life services director at The Heritage, "Twain was not only a well-known author and lecturer, he was an inventor, extensive traveler, a keen observer of the human scene – and he was very intelligent. His presentation impacted many of The Heritage's Eight Dimensions of Wellness." The eight dimensions are intellectual, physical, emotional, social, spiritual, environmental, vocational and health services.
